When I was 3 years old my 3 older brothers and I went to your house to get an autograph from your dad. I wound up on your dads lap and eating his breakfast. It was a sunday in 1958. My father came running when he found out. Your mom would not let me leave until I finished your dads Eggs Bacon Juice and toast. I spied his coffee and your dad said I was to young for it. When I was through I hugged and kissed both your parents. Im now 68 retired in Virginia. I wear your dads jersey faithfully. In my travels I have encountered alot of celebrities. I talk and shake hands some will ask if I want an autograph. I politely say no thank you.

*A very belated condolences to you and your family.
I missed the announcement of your mother's death and tears came to my eyes when her name was announced at today's Old Timers day.
I met your mom and dad several times in the early 60s at my uncle Ronnie's Charcoal Grill in Teaneck, and at several testimonial dinners he got tickets for me and my father to attend.
Throughout my ball playing days I wore #32, for Elston.
Just filled out tomorrow's church envelopes, my envelope is #32, also for your dad.
Your mother always looked elegant (and so young) at these old Timers ceremonies, may she rest in eternal peace at home once again with your dad*
