

Clementina Carmela Allured

January 12, 2019

Clementina Carmela Malvena DiGeronimo Allured, or simply “Clem,” passed away on Saturday, January 12th, at the age of 94. Beloved mother to Steven Allured and Gina Byrne and her husband Kevin; treasured “Grandma Maca” to Tyler and Conor Byrne; loving sister to brother Jerry DiGeronimo; and pre-deceased by son Jackie, brother Joseph, and sister-in-law Lori. The daughter of Italian immigrants Joseph and Rosina, Clem was a true New Yorker. She was a proud graduate of Washington Irving High School and a long-time resident of East Harlem (“the old neighborhood”) and Flushing, Queens. As the “Woman of the Half Century,” Clem worked at Time Magazine for 50 years, from 1942 to 1992, in the News Bureau with foreign correspondents and writers from around the world. Clem had a sharp sense of humor, was always quick to make friends, was kind to all, and her “shirt-off-her-back” generosity was unparalleled. She was passionately committed to her family; Clem’s favorite role was as doting grandmother to her grandsons, who will miss her dearly. She loved: mocha cake; ice cream in her coffee; Columbo; Mary Poppins; Judge Judy; and Good & Plenty. We love you, Maca!

“ Mrs. Gina and family , Please accept my deepest and heartfelt condolences at this time.I've work with Clementina otherwise known as Maca for a little over two years, she was a selfless soul and makes everyone around her smile.I remembered the day I got sick on the job, and she got so concerned that she volunteered to call and get me help. She even told me to use her walker to walk.Even though I was in a lot of pain I had to laugh because here she was,sick herself but still offering to help.Your memories will be in my heart forever Clem.❤️💕 S.I.P my angel Natiesha Ellis
