“ George was a good man. He quietly went to war when his country needed him. He worked and contributed to those around him his whole life. He was a warm, friendly, kind, human being with a wonderful sense of humor, who loved animals. I will miss our lunches together at the River's Edge diner. If there is an hereafter, and Lord I hope there is, I am confident George is now cruising some heavenly lake, in a powerful wooden motor boat, breathing easy, wind in his hair, looking for the appropriate well stocked establishment to dock at.
Until we meet again George, may the good God above hold you in the hollow of his hand.
