“ Joey,

I know you know how much you mean to my family and me. I am most thankful for all of the laughs that you have given me... the showering one really sticks out. hahaha. The personal jokes that we have shared... like the cigarettes after surgery (and so many of which I can't mention on the internet). Anyone who knows you understands. And all of the generosity and love that you have shown to us. The countless times you came over to help us late at night when the furnace stopped. All of the times we borrowed your tools. How you let my son drive all of your equipment. You found me work to make money as a young woman... All the times I went to school with paint in my hair and didn't realize. haha. How you taught my oldest son to moon people as a child. lol. I will miss you terribly. I'm glad I got to spend time with you and get to know you because if not, I would have missed out on one of the truest blessings to come into my life - you. You are the real meaning of a true friend and a genuine personality. You always kept it real. I will miss the, "Hey, deary" and the "whatever you need". You are the greatest. Thank you for every memory, every laugh, everything. You are forever a part of me. I promise you a bath when I get up there to see you. ;)
