“ South Park High School, Buffalo, NY, 1950's. We had fun in those days, even in German class (Fraulein Metz), Geometry (Mrs. Gordan) & even Chemistry ("Moey" Michales). We made crude gunpowder and filled my house with smoke (no bang, just smoke), Mother was not happy and Dad, being a Fireman, made sure I didn't do that again! As teenagers, we used to walk the shore near your Grandmas's house in Derby on Lake Erie, where we found those smooth oval stones with the yellow crystals inside. Not having any idea what they were, we decided to call them Dinosaur Eggs. Sixty years on, I visited the Greycliff Estate, a Frank Lloyd Wright creation, above the cliff where we found the "eggs". The Docent had a Geologist daughter, who Identified them as Septarian Concretions, 370 million years old and formed naturally in the layer of slate where we found them at the base of the cliff. The one I kept from all those years ago, I recently donated to the Greycliff Museum along with our names and the story of its journey from the base of the cliff. Rest easy my friend.
