

Sergey Gazumyan

December 1, 2014

Sergey Gazumyan was born on July 8 in Germany and grew up in Yerevan, Armenia, a big brother to two doting (and mischievous) sisters, Anna and Mariya. He met the love of his life, Karine, when they were both 15. They built a wonderful life together, raising two children, Ashot and Anaida. In 1992, Sergey, Karine, and the children joined the rest of his family in the USA and soon made a home for themselves in Teaneck, NJ. A graduate of Yerevan State University's Department of Mechanical Mathematics, he studied network engineering at Columbia University in New York and worked as a network engineer at Warnaco for nearly a decade before leaving to devote his time to his family.

Sergey was a proud and loving grandfather of three grandsons, Sasha, Niko, and Sammy. He taught them what he liked to do best: to swim, to play, to garden. Most of all, he taught them to be fearless and honest, leading by example as he always did in life.

On Monday December 1st, Sergey passed away peacefully, surrounded by his loved ones. He was 61. He lives on through his children and grandchildren. Spending time with them brought him profound happiness in his last years. He lives on through the mark his love made on everyone around him. We will never forget his inexhaustible patience, his profound kindness, his deep laughter, his playful sense of fun with kids and adults alike, and his unrivaled khorovats. His effect on people was described perfectly by his sister Anna, "Each time you are near him, you feel enveloped by a blanket of love and concern." Though gone from here, he lives on through all of us.
