“ Dear Diana, Albert, and Dan, We know that at this hour you are in attendance at your mother's funeral. It's a moment you will never forget. Although we are both very sorry for this deeply sad event, it is still true that your mother has been very fortunate to live a long and interesting and rewarding life. She had a long and happy marriage, and three excellent children, and survived long enough to be sure that her grandchildren will also be a great source of pride to the Hendi family. We will all do well to accomplish all of this. We hope the sadness will soon make way for the wonderful memories of both your mother and your father that you all deserve to enjoy. It's the march of the generations...in our family, we welcomed our first grandchild almost one month ago. And we also have so recently said good-bye to the last of our old guard. We have to remember how lucky we all have been to have had the parents that we have had. We can hope our children want to emulate our own way of raising them, as we have emulated our oldies. All our very, very best to all of you, and to Alan, Lise and Lisa and all of the children.
